about Exploration

Who are we?
We are a group of professionals who want to assist incoming and current students who are undecided in their major.

Who are our students?
University Exploration students identify themselves as undecided for a multitude of reasons, but we typically serve 3 types of students: those who want to learn about the 170+ majors offered, those who have narrowed their choices but who want time to confirm, and those who have chosen a major but need to fulfill the entrance requirements.

What makes us unique?
We have a constellation of outstanding services to help students shine during their first years at Ohio State. Our program has been designed to walk your student through the process of finding a major, and we’re devoted to helping him or her from the first to last day in Exploration.

myths debunked

My student is the only undecided student.
Approximately 15–20% of all incoming students start in Exploration. Your student is in good company and will have a lot of support.

Studies estimate that up to 75% of students entering college will change their major before graduation!

Students who start undecided will graduate later.
At OSU, students who receive support in selecting a major are just as likely to graduate on time. This is evidence that solid advising and relationship-building help our students stay on track for their selected degrees.

Less than 2% of students who start in Exploration return to the program after declaring a major.

My student might not be able to get into the major they eventually decide on.
Your student would be entering as a pre-major for most competitive programs that can be selected on their application. Students who start in Exploration have the same opportunities to apply to majors as students who start in the pre-major programs. Our students declare majors in every college and school at Ohio State.

We work closely with colleges to ensure that students in Exploration have similar course access as students in majors and pre-majors.
